Death of Mrs. Carrie B. Lumpkin.

The death angel cast a dark shadow over our entire community last Wednesday night when he came into our midst and took from us a lovely Christian character, and a devoted mother, Mrs. Carrie Elizabeth Brown Lumpkin. Her husband, Mr. D. B. Lumpkin, preceded her to the grave about four years ago.

Though her death was not unexpected, it was none the less sad. She severely, she was patient to the end, and was appreciative of all that was done for her.

She is survived by one son, Mr. B. Lumpkin, Blackstock, S. C. R. F. D. 3; and two daughters, Mrs. Alice Paul, of Great Falls; and Miss Janie Belle Lumpkin, Blackstock, R. F. D. 3; also one brother, Mr. John Brown, of Rock Hill, S. C.

The largest crowd ever attending a trial in the Chester county Court House was present Wednesday at the trial of Rev. Ely Sullivan, colored, who was charged with the murder of Rev. John Colvin, also colored, which occurred on April 25th, 1918. By far the majority of the crowd were negroes, they being here from far and wide to learn what they could of the trial and to get a glimpse of Sullivan.

The court house was packed and in both front and rear yards large crowds were loitering around. Hundreds of negroes were in the rear of the court house yesterday at the noon recess hour to see Sullivan as he was escorted from the Court House back to the jail.

Sullivan was tried for the murder of the Rev. John Colvin, as was stated, and it is stated that he also shot and killed Sam Sanders, colored, on the same date and at the same time. The shooting occurred at Mount Prospect church in the Western section of the county. Sullivan fled immediately after the shooting and managed to evade the officers until the past summer, when he was caught in Gastonia, N. C. Sullivan was seen on the streets of Gastonia by a negro who recognized him and reported his presence to the officers who arrested him, notifying the Chester county authorities, who went for him and brought him to Chester where he has been in the County Jail since.

Yesterday afternoon the jury returned a verdict of guilty with recommendation to mercy and Judge Rice sentenced Sullivan to life imprisonment. The jury was composed of the following: A. G. Westbrook, foreman; F. T. Wade, L. E. Grant, J. B. Barnes, W. C. Garrison, R. F. Crook, J. F. Castles, T. L. Grant, K. H. White, W. A. Watta, W. L. Kirkpatrick and A. B. Lee.

She is survived by one son, Mr. B. Lumpkin, Blackstock, S. C. R. F. D. 3; and two daughters, Mrs. Alice Paul, of Great Falls; and Miss Janie Belle Lumpkin, Blackstock, R. F. D. 3; also one brother, Mr. John Brown, of Rock Hill, S. C.

TRY SITTING STILL

By H. Addington Bruce.
You complain of feelings of dissatisfaction, anxiety, uneasiness. Life, as you put it, does not go as smoothly for you. Yet there is every reason it should go quite comfortably.

You are free from any definite cause for worry. You have an adequate income. Your work does not make overtaxing demands on you. So that altogether you are at a loss to understand why you feel as you do.

Quite possibly it is because you attack life too insistently, so to speak. One does not have to observe you long to perceive that you belong to the numerous class of people who never "let down." All your waking moments you are "on the go." Ever during quiet times you are feverishly intent on some project of labor or recreation.

This means that you keep yourself unduly keyed up. As a result you are in a chronic state of muscular life, as well as mental tension. Such a state could very well give rise to the unpleasant feelings of which you complain.

If it actually is their cause, one of the best antidotes for this condition is the habit of frequently sitting still for a few minutes. During these few minutes you should do absolutely nothing and should be almost as inactive as regards your mind.

For that matter, because of the tension-breeding conditions of modern life, cultivation of the habit of frequently sitting still is a salutary practice for everybody. As Professor M. V. O'Shea points out, in his "Mental Development and Education":

"In towns and cities, at any rate, there is unceasing motion. Not only are human beings running here and there under full steam, but the streets are crowded at all hours with noisy, swift-moving vehicles. The automobile has increased the pace in American life, and it has already exerted an influence upon the nervous condition of the people.

"In many places there is no longer any quiet. Neither adults nor children see anything at rest; and people tend to reproduce in their own actions whatever lack of peace and composure they feel in their environment.

"The home and school should make an attempt to counteract the exciting influence of the street. At certain periods every pupil in school and every member of a family should be quiet. Young and old alike should learn to sit still."

Certainly for those who feel as strangely uneasy as you do, the need for frequently sitting still is doubly great. Only do not make the mistake of trying at first to sit still for any length of time.

This would increase rather than decrease your nervousness, unaccustomed as you are to either mental or physical quiescence. Begin with merely momentary periods of relaxation, prolonging these gradually until at last you can sit effortlessly for ten or fifteen minutes at a time.

You are sure to feel both physically and mentally refreshed thereby. And you may need nothing more than this desirable habit to give you the contentment for which you now yearn in vain.

Charlotte, Nov. 2.—State Bank Examiner J. H. Craig, with three assistants, was busy today at the Enterprise bank, auditing the books of this institution, which closed its doors yesterday. Whether the bank will find it feasible to resume business or liquidate is to be decided after the audit at a conference between Examiner Craig and the directors.

SERVICE

SERVICE

The word Service is being abused to an astonishing extent these days. We doubt if there is another word in the English language which is being slaughtered more than the word Service. You walk into a place of business and a big placard looks you square in the face saying "Service." You hang around for half an hour waiting on some one to Serve you. That's an illustration of the many ways in which people are abusing the word Service.

We advertise Service at our filing station and believe us that's what we give you. If old Webster were to drive his flivver into our filing station he would smile out loud at the prompt and efficient manner in which we carry out the definition of the word Service.

When you buy gasoline in Chester in addition to the gasoline, you pay for Service. Are you getting it? You are entitled to it and those who do not give it to you are fleeing you.

We talk about our Service and it is our aim to hand it to you in full measure. If we fail to satisfy you with our Service, holler, we want to hear about it.

You get Service at our place—Come around.
